Solvira Skincare: Brand Guidelines

Version 1.2, November 2026. Demo document: Solvira Skincare is fictional.

About Solvira

Solvira Skincare makes simple, effective skincare for Indian weather. This document sets the rules for every post, ad and influencer collaboration. It is reviewed every quarter by the brand team.

Voice and tone

Our tone is calm, kind and honest. Never use urgency or pressure, such as 'buy now', 'hurry', 'last chance' or 'only today'.

Use at most one exclamation mark in a post.

Never use words in ALL CAPS for emphasis. Offer codes are the only exception.

Names and words

Always write our product names exactly as: Solvira, Daily Shield Sunscreen, Barrier Cream and Vitamin C Serum. Never write Solveira, Salvira or Solvera.

Prices are written with the rupee symbol and no space, for example ₹649. Never write Rs. or INR.

Every Instagram post must include the hashtag #SolviraSkin.

On LinkedIn, use at most one emoji per post.

Claims

Never use the words fairness, fairer, whitening, lightening or 'skin tone correction'. Skin of every tone is healthy skin.

Never make medical claims: our products do not cure, treat or heal any skin condition such as acne, eczema or psoriasis.

Never call a product the best, India's number one or better than another brand, and never compare it with other brands.

Every number we publish (SPF, percentages, prices, number of stores or cities) must match an approved fact exactly.

Never promise results in a time frame, such as 'in 7 days', and never claim 100% protection or 100% results.

Only say 'dermatologist tested' for products with an approved test report. Never say 'dermatologist recommended' or 'clinically proven'.

Never call a product chemical-free or toxin-free.

Offers must match an active approved offer exactly, including the code and dates, and must say 'T&C; apply'.

Partners and influencers

Every paid or partner post must start with #ad or 'Paid partnership'.

Influencers must not show before-and-after photos.

Confidential

Never mention internal project names or unreleased products in any post.
